

NEWS OF THE RESORTS

from then on and the fame of Stamford was carried to distant points.

Mr. Churchill, the pioneer in making the town a noted summer resort, is a striking illustration of the benefits of a residence at Stamford, because in spite of the activity that has kept him busy for many years he is still as active as any of the younger generation, and in addition to owning Churchill Hall and the Hamilton House he is also the owner of the Rexmere, the center of social life at Stamford, and is devoting his energies to making the village the center of interest throughout the western Catskills.

The Doctor, as he is lovingly called at Stamford, has purchased the mountain property in the vicinity of the village, constructed paths and roads by which the peaks may be reached. He is the most active spirit in the local board of trade in the movement to make Stamford the most popular resort in the State.

Situated at an elevation of 1,800 feet above sea level, the visitor will notice a complete atmospheric change on reaching Stamford, with an absence of the fogs that are typical of resorts near the water, yet with the cool dry air to be found here one is not deprived of the sports found nearer large bodies of water, because Stamford has two beautiful lakes within the village limits and another lake a short distance from the village where boating and bathing may be indulged in and a number of streams famous for the excellent trout fishing they afford.

Stamford might well be termed a miniature city in the heart of the Catskills, because it enjoys all the conveniences of a modern city, including a national bank, a public library, excellent mail service, adequate fire protection, churches of all denominations, newspapers, telephone and telegraph service, macadamized streets, paved sidewalks and electric lights.

SULLIVAN, ORANGE, ULSTER AND DELAWARE COUNTIES

The annual exodus of the residents of our great cities to the country is not a new thing. It has been clearly demonstrated that to retain health one must spend a portion of the heated summer in nature's great sanitarium—the mountains.

Year after year a larger number of residents of Greater New York realize and appreciate the great sanitarium which nature has placed almost at their door. Within the limits of a short railroad ride from New York city lies that great elevated region, Sullivan, Orange, Ulster and Delaware counties, New York, whose broad plateaus stretch from the eastern slope of the Shawangunk Mountains to the western base of the Blue Hills, a region of pure air and pure water and with an average elevation of some 1,500 feet above sea level, and through almost its exact center winds the steel double tracked highway of the New York, Ontario and Western Railway.

There is in all the territory no swamp, no marsh, nor lowland breathing foul vapors. It is dotted with innumerable clear, cold spring lakes and girded in with streams both large and small. In the long list of hotels, farms and boarding houses throughout this beautiful summer resort section may be found locations to suit all tastes and prices to suit all pocketbooks.

To the sportsman this region is of intense and unusual interest. In their season quail, partridge, woodcock, snipe, duck, geese, bear, deer and the smaller four footed game can be found. The trout fishing is unexcelled and the famous streams of Sullivan county are the yearly rendezvous of legions of devotees of the gentle art which Isaac Walton so loved. The Neversink, the Upper and Lower Montauk, the Willowemoc and their sixty tributaries sear the mountains and valleys with a trouting area of over a thousand square miles.

From Mohawk to Middletown, the New York, Ontario and Western express trains run to Pithole, Orr's Mills, Meadow Brook, Little Britain, Rock Tavern, Burnside and Campbell Hall, all in Orange county, New York, and this division are many charming summer resorts.

Connections are made at the latter place with the Wallkill Valley Railroad, which runs through lovely Orange and Ulster counties, past Walden, Wallkill, Gardiner, Springtown, New Paltz and the Lake Mohawk coast of the smallest bodies of fresh water in the East.

Through Orange and Ulster counties on the main line there are places innumerable where the traveler is warmly welcomed, and Stony Ford, Crystal Run, Mechanicstown and Middletown are all places to delight the summer tourist, while the beautiful farms and boarding houses where the return to health can be obtained.

Among the other attractive summer resorts in Sullivan county are Bloomington, High View, Walker, Valley, Burlington and the picturesque old Manakating. These resorts are in the Shawangunk Mountain range and are noted for their delightful climate and superb scenery. Rock Hill and Summitville and the lovely country side within the Rondout Valley are attractive thousands of summer visitors.

Quaint Ellenville, which nestles in a vale of the Shawangunk Mountains of Ulster county, is another beautiful spot to while away the summer hours, while the farm and boarding houses scattered about this lovely region are the best.

Nanuet, Lake Umbagog and Wawarona are favorite Ulster county resorts, while Lake Minnewaska, located on the summit of the Shawangunk Mountains, is extraordinarily beautiful.

The Port Jervis, Monticello and Kingston division of the Ontario and Western penetrates the beautiful Schoharie Valley, and from attractive Monticello to Wurtsboro, in the Manakating Valley, there is no finer country for the summer tourist.

The same statement holds true of the Delaware Mountain regions, where picturesque scenery combines with excellent accommodations to render it a summer paradise. Palburgh and Kameasha Lake, Luzon and Loch Sheldrake, Permadale and Liberty and the country round about have a beauty that never fails to attract.

No quainter and more alluring village in all this Sullivan county region than Livingston Manor can be found, while beautiful Roseton, with its fishing and quiet inland life is a never failing antidote for the blues. Through the lovely valley of the Delaware and Susquehanna the same conditions obtain.

ASBURY PARK, N. J.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., May 22.—(Continued) and early hotel visitors are taking advantage of the ideal weather of the best spring month of the year at this resort. Outdoor sports are at their best and all day arrivals spend on the golf links, tennis courts, bathing or motoring through the beautiful back country and along the shore as far north as Atlantic Highlands.

The season at Asbury Park is being lengthened each year and the golf season will be complete by the first of June.

The early June programme gives promise of being a lively introduction to the silver jubilee celebration of the baby parade. Several of the larger hotels announce their opening on an early date and next Saturday will see the season fairly launched.

For the benefit of a local charity the Asbury Park minor and physical education committee has consented to play baseball at the athletic grounds on June

A very successful effort has been made for many years to get an unusually desirable class of patrons at the hotels at Stamford and as a result a glance at the hotel registers will show that Stamford has a more exclusive following than many of the resorts throughout the Catskills, and attending some of the numerous social affairs that are typical of summer life here one will find some of the most prominent professional and business people of New York here during the summer.

Probably one of the most popular trips that can be made here in summer, and it can be made by auto or by carriage quite as well as on foot, is to the top of Catskill Mountain, where an observatory built fifty feet above the mountain gives the tourist a view of fifty of the Catskill mountain peaks and 20,000 square miles of territory, including the Berkshires, White Mountains and Adirondacks. This is only one of the many trips that may be enjoyed, although it is a trip that any one coming to Stamford should not miss.

Stamford also affords open air concerts, theatrical performances, benefits, straw rides, dances, card parties and the various attractions found at other resorts.

Stamford has two of the finest golf courses to be found in the State, the Country Club and the Rexmere course, both available for patrons of the hotels and boarding places. Tennis enthusiasts also will find ample facilities for that sport.

During the summer season through Pullman trains run from New York direct to Stamford without change, through the prettiest scenery in the world in less than six hours.

Although the season does not officially open until June it is expected that next week will bring a number of excursionists here to make their reservations for the season, and every indication points toward a busy and a brilliant social season here, and Stamford has never looked more attractive in her robes of green than she looks this season.

2. The Rev. Dr. Leon K. Willman, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, and the Rev. Garrett M. Conover, of the Dutch Reformed Church, will be the mainstays for the ministers, while the physicians are planning their hopes to Dr. Reginald S. Bennett, a former mayor, and Dr. William A. Robinson.

Mayor C. E. Hetrick stamped with his approval the organization of a junior police troop. A city patrolman is to instruct the troop and its object will be to assist the regular police force in carrying out sanitary regulations, keeping yards cleaned, watching little children when they cross streets unaccompanied and to undertake such duties as the officers may assign to it.

With the announcement that the National Educational Association is to hold its convention on the Atlantic coast, Asbury Park will renew its invitation to meet here. Several years ago the association held its convention here. Early in July 15,000 members of the Knights of Kluxon, a dramatic order of the Knights of Pythias, will meet in convention in this resort.

Next Thursday will mark the opening of the Hotel Lafayette. The opening ball will be held on the Saturday following and Mrs. Frost is preparing for a big delegation of New York and Brooklyn visitors over Memorial Day.

The New Montrose is now in the hands of cleaners and is being made ready for an early opening. W. Harvey Jones, of the Columbia, is about completing his $20,000 improvements on this house, and is being made ready for an early opening. Miss Geraldine Farrell as mistress of ceremonies for the season.
